In today's Digital age, having duplicates of original files is very common. Whether this is a text file, a photo, an office file or an image, odds are you may have a second copy or a copy made at a different time. This program provides two useful features for user to remove duplicate files: 1- On startup, the program loads a directory, and displays a list of sub-directories and files within the directory. 2- It then applies the external tools provided by the user to detect duplicates inside this directory. The user can, then, select any duplicated files and applications or other data management tools can be used to remove or rename those duplicates. Frequently Asked Questions: Q: Why does it need more resources to run?A: The Software architecture is based on file-to-file compare, which means to have more files to compare it will need more resources. Q: Where can I download free software?A: Many software titles are not available in free trial versions. I understand your frustration with all of the software that claims to be free, but being honest, I often end up paying for it myself. Software titles offered on this page are ones that I use personally, and I would recommend them to others. For example, it's good for a general all-around desktop file utility like OpenOffice.org: Q: Will you send me a FREE key for my software?A: I don't recommend this practice because software keys often disappear from people's computers and in many cases it costs additional money. Buy the software at a legal source and support the company as well.
