WeakAuras Companion [32|64bit] [2022-Latest]

WeakAuras Companion For the first time ever, your auras will be fully modifiable and controllable through a simple WeakAuras companion app. Get stronger. - See more at: WeakAuras Companion Review - I very much like this app, as it makes me much easier to use the weakauras framework I am using for my last addon. Also, it is a nice little app, shows all my buffs on one screen, so I can check who is currently under my control, and it makes it much easier to chose whether I want to see friendly or enemy buffs. The app is very nice and does not cost anything. All I ask is that people like me who write and develop free mods to support them through donations. The current addon version is 0.3.3.16, but the next version will be 0.4.0.8, so it is recommended that people who intend to install it use the current version. Otherwise, it's very easy to change the version you install: simply change the "@App.Version" I've been using WeakAuras for quite a while now and it's the best addon in the game for me, as it has probably the best UI for monitoring buffs/debuffs/and such. WeakAuras Companion now allows me to see the auras of different characters, without having to open the ingame UI and have a clutter of auras on my screen. Best addon ever. Author's comment: Hello, I am Jorell, the developer of WeakAuras Companion. I created this so that everyone could have a better experience with WeakAuras. Now when WeakAuras is updated, WeakAuras Companion will auto-update and keep your auras up-to-date. It will automatically detect all your auras, debuffs and statuses in your profile and will create a final and completed auras view for you. How to use: After you install, and configure it, the Companion will ask for a UUID, which is an identifier that is unique to your account. This UUID is given when you install the addon, through the use of the command Code: `/script addons_weakauras.WeakAurasCompanion toyou.run` However, if you later change the name, so it corresponds to the new name of your addon, you will need to re-install it. The first time you run the Companion, it will download the instructions that the addon has provided through its XML file (up-to-date at all times), and you need to accept or ignore the Terms and conditions for the addon. After that, you can run the Companion, and the auras will appear right on your screen. You can view the information about any of them by hovering your mouse over it (or you can add new ones by adding new functions or conditions with right click). If you want to browse the information of all your auras, you can just hit a single button, and the tool will show you an overview of all of them. After you open the console, you can use the commands to manage your auras, as well as to update them. The average speed at which the addon fetches the new data is within ~2 seconds per aura, and given the fact that WoW is constantly updating those, and that the state of your characters are constantly changing, you will be notified as soon as you have the latest information available. You can also open the console by going to Window > WeakAuras Companion > Script Console Who is this for: The Companion is targeted at people who don't wish to reconfigure their auras manually, as they can do that using the Companion, as long as they are connected to a network that allows them to receive the updates. Scripting Addons on WoW (v1.0) by alexmac Welcome to WAGO-Scripter Wiki for WoW Scripting! WeakAuras Companion connects to the Wago.io platform, a site where users can make auras to use in World of Warcraft. It gives the aura description as well as the coords. WeakAuras Companion Official Website: #weakauras #weakaurascompanion #weakauras Since release of World of Warcraft: Battle for Azeroth, I've been using WeakAuras Companion (WAC) to manage my weakauras. WAC has been good enough to manage my weakauras for the past six months. However, sometimes during dungeons/raids, I wouldn't see my auras in-game, sometimes the auras on my screen wouldn't match my weakauras. I ended up reloading into and out of dungeons/raids to see the auras in-game, a tedious process.
